The Akron Zips are 1-4 against the Bowling Green Falcons since October of 2015, but they'll have a chance to close the gap a little bit Saturday. The Zips and Bowling Green will face off in a Mid-American battle at 2 p.m. ET at Summa Field at InfoCision Stadium. Both of these teams will be looking for a pick-me-up after considerable defeats in their previous games.

A win for Akron just wasn't in the stars last week as the team never even grasped a temporary lead. They ended up on the wrong side of a painful 38-7 walloping at the Miami (OH) RedHawks' hands. Akron was in a tough position by the half, with the score already sitting at 24 to nothing. QB Zach Gibson had a memorable game, but not in the way you want to be remembered: despite one touchdown, he threw one interception with only 5.22 yards per passing attempt.

Meanwhile, Bowling Green played a game they are hoping to forget as they lost a 52-10 blowout to the Ohio Bobcats last week. The last quarter was a mere formality since it was already 52-10 by the third quarter. Bowling Green's loss came about despite a quality game from RB Andrew Clair, who picked up 118 yards on the ground on 15 carries.

This next contest is expected to be close, with Akron going off at just a 2.5-point favorite. At 0-2 against the spread at home, they are no cash cow. That said, the Falcons aren't so hot on the road, where they are 0-2.

The losses bumped both teams down to an identical 0-4. Two defensive stats to keep an eye on: The Zips are ninth worst in the nation in yards allowed per game, with 489.3 on average. Bowling Green has experienced some struggles of their own as they are stumbling into the matchup with the second most rushing yards allowed per game in the nation, having given up 339 on average. It's possible one of these Achilles' heels will wind up tripping the losing team up.
